VAKIRIA GLOW

Vakiria-inspired bamboo pendant lamp translating traditional Mizo headgear into a sculptural light form with soft cotton diffusion and red yarn accents.

E27 Filament bulb
(2700K to 3000K)

Pistachio shells

Cowrie Shells

Cane strips

Red tassels

Red cotton yarn

Pingpih
(Job's Tears)

Bamboo strips

Loofah sheet as Light Diffuser

Hawk Moth Cocoon

VAKIRIA

Vakiria is a traditional Mizo headgear, deeply rooted in cultural heritage that has evolved into a cherished accessory often worn during festivals like Chapchar Kut and dances like Cheraw. Made from bamboo, feathers, and vibrant materials. It symbolizes Mizo cultural identity, specifically representing the feathery portion of traditional headgear

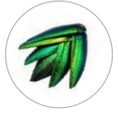
Cotton tassels

Parrot tail feather

Porcupine quilt

Bamboo or Brass

Pingpih beads



Beetle wings
Or Cowrie shells

Weaved
bamboo