ABOUT

SHIMMER is an exploration of Brazilian identity through the intersection of traditional craft and contemporary jewellery, using a material-led and culturally grounded approach. Each piece is realised through hand-making processes: dyeing, traditional weaving, and stone cutting, combined with digital fabrication methods, blending ancestral and contemporary techniques within a modern design language.

Working directly with artisan communities, Brazilian vernacular materials are introduced, such as large Camurupim fish scales, pre-consumer food waste, and Capim Dourado (golden grass) a geo-site-specific plant with local cultural value, into contemporary jewellery, juxtaposing them with precious materials and precision-cut crystal loupes.

The collection challenges our continuing dominant notions of “preciousness” and repositions craft as part of the true essence of luxury, grounded in human time, collective knowledge, and ethical collaboration.

Bridging Brazil and Europe through design and meaningful narratives, Shimmer is intended for a culturally engaged audience that values innovation, unexpected materials and cultural preservation.

COLLECTION CATALOGUE

Crafted from Capim Dourado (Golden Grass), these elongated earrings bring together the artisanal knowledge of the Mumbuca Community in Brazil and contemporary design. Crystal loupes are integrated into the piece, evoking droplets of water resting on the material while also functioning as magnifying lenses that reveal the intricate textures and details of the naturally golden fibres. Inspired by the richness of Brazilian landscapes, the design celebrates both nature and craftsmanship. Despite their striking length, the earrings remain exceptionally lightweight and comfortable to wear.

Each scale is supported by a concealed metal structure beneath its surface, providing stability while allowing the material's natural beauty to remain the focal point. The hidden components are made from silver and finished with gold plating, creating a refined balance between craftsmanship, innovation, and the unique character of the organic material.
